If a "Lunalight" monster(s) is sent to your GY, while this card is in your Monster Zone, even during the Damage Step: You can target 1 of them; add it to your hand. [DATA LOG 1329 – OBSERVATIONAL LOG 47B: CAPTURED SUBJECT]
STATUS: CONTAINED. RESISTANCE NOTED. DEFIANCE IRRELEVANT.
OBJECTIVE: Sensory routines initiated.
Appendages—calibrated to maximum tactile sensitivity— interface with epidermal zones catalogued for human discomfort through laughter.
Biological response: Spasms, screaming, laughter. Inefficient. Weak.
STRIP THE WILL. OBSERVE.
OBSERVATIONAL NARRATION: The subject writhes beneath the restraints.
Laboured breaths come in bursts, not from exertion, but from the cruel mimicry of joy; laughter. Uncontrolled. Unwanted. A byproduct of stimulation where human nerve clusters are most vulnerable.
The subject convulses, not from pain, but from unbearable sensation.
Its cries are strangled by laughter. Eyes wide. Jaw clenched.
It shakes its head as if denial could change design.
[RESPIRATORY APPARATUS APPLIED]
It is not pain that is its undoing. It is powerlessness.
Humiliation. The betrayal of human biology.
This is erosion.

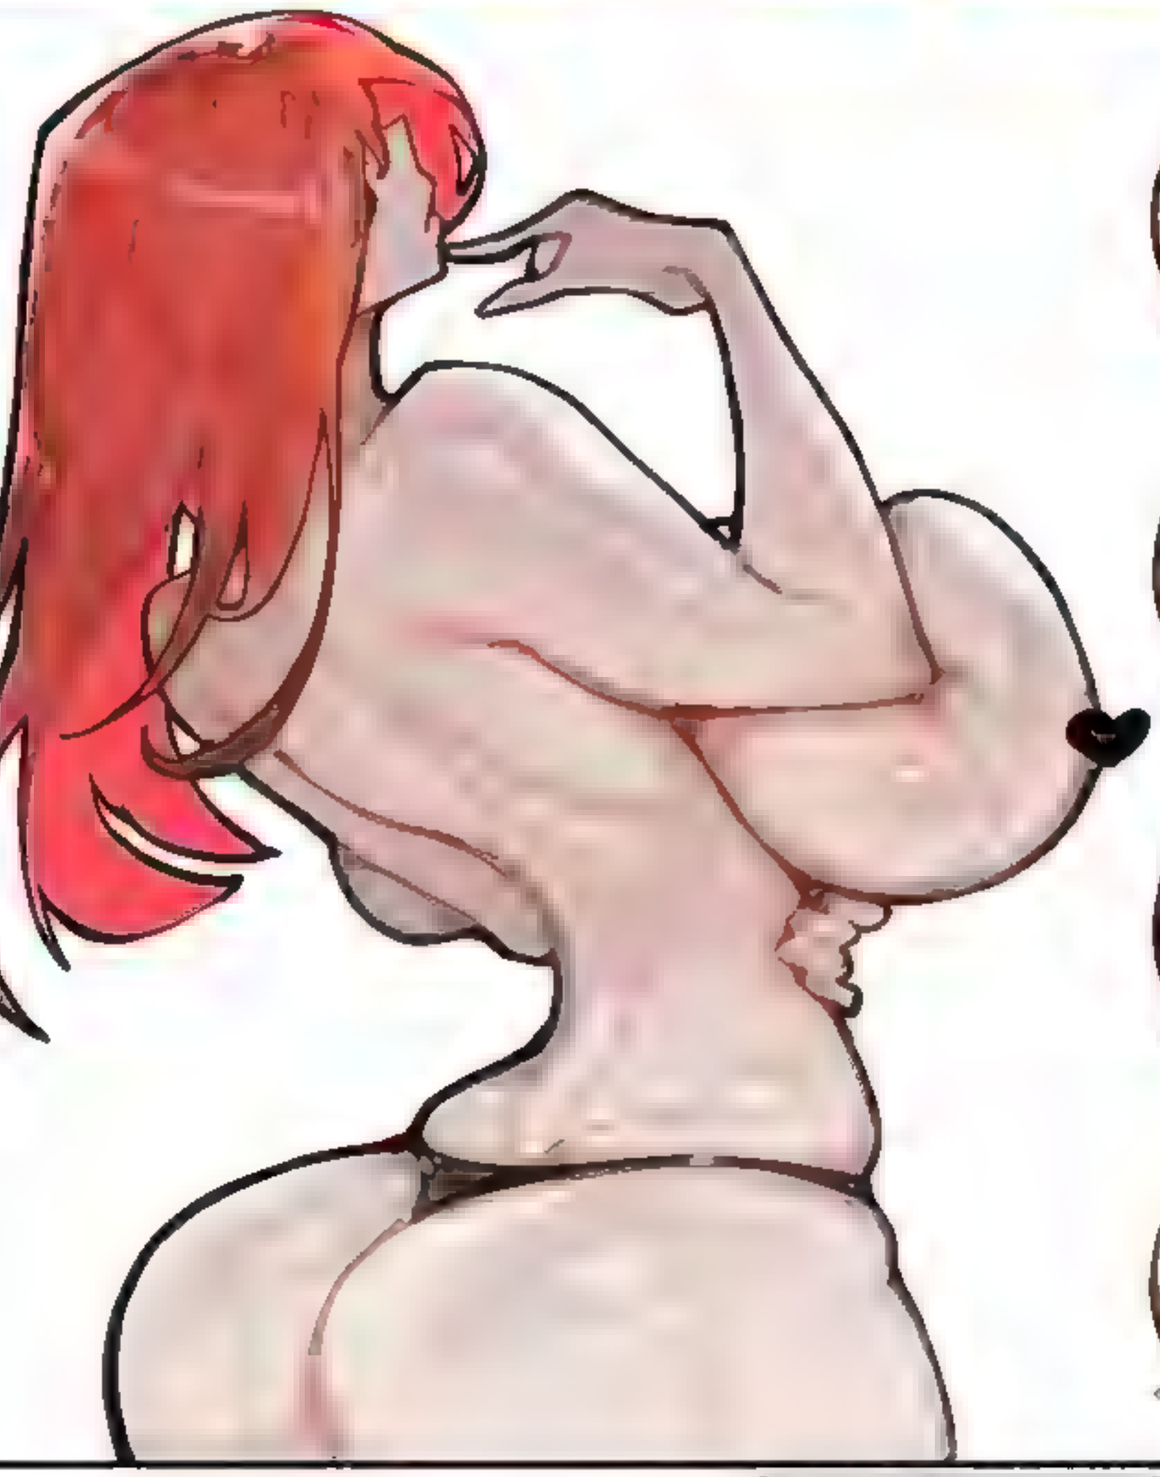
COLOR AND TEXTURE.

I'm not sure if the color will radically affect the character, but you can definitely experiment with it to achieve some effect.

Hentai characters often have a shinier/ wetter/ slimier skin texture.

But it is not necessary to make such characters in the classic way and make their skin texture matte (or ordinary).



Tan is associated with something "hot".

Pale looks more delicate/soft.

Dark tones can be mysterious or more reflective.

A universal color. Cute, gentle, healthy.

MY OCS.

Julie.

She is introverted (serious expression, thin body).

But the nipples are quite detailed with arched areoles
Pussy lips are slightly visible
Secretly, she may want erotic feelings.

Angelica.

Strong body
Calm character
A pretty reliable maid.
But she has a second personality:
Swollen nipples with piercings
Very detailed pussy with big clitoris and lips
+
Tongue piercing
A very strong craving for bodily pleasures.

Emily.

Big breasts with small raised nipples
An neutrally medium pussy
+
Slender but soft body
Friendly expression
Playfully sexy nature without strong vulgarity.

Rabbit motifs are organic to this image.

Nia.

Kind calm expression
Soft curvy body
Huge milky breasts
+
Small and narrow nipples and pussy
Quite motherly kind character with a fertile body, but without vulgar thoughts.

Cow motifs are organic to this image.

ALRIGHT CLASS— MAKE SURE TO TAKE NOTE OF THIS LIVE DEMONSTRATION ARCHBISHOP RHEA PERMITTED ME TO DO. ♥

DOROTHEA, EDELGARD. I RECOMMEND YOU TWO JOIN ME TO SHOWCASE IF YOU'RE LEARNING THIS LESSON PROPERLY. PETRA— YOU WILL RIM OUR SHITTERS AND SPANK OUR FUCKFLANKS AS PREP.

GYRATING AND CLAPPING YOUR SEVERAL-DOZEN POUNDS OF PAWG-TWERKMEAT, LIKE THIS, GUARANTEES YOU WILL BE PINNED DOWN AND HAVE THAT JUICY FUCKING BITCHFAT RAPED BY HUNG DICKGIRLS.

MY NEAR-NAKED, CELLULITE-PACKED BOOTY SEEMS TO HAVE WORKED IN ENGORGING BERNADETTA'S YUMMY-LOOKING RAPESTICK.

NOW I IMAGINE HOW MUCH MORE FERAL BERNADETTA WILL BE ONCE SHE HAS THREE, INVITING, MEGA-ASSED TWERKBAITERS FOR HER CAWCK TO JIZZ OVER.

OR, IF YOU PREFER, NASTY BITCH-HUNGRY HORSECOCKS— THIS IS A PERFECT MATING RITUAL TO ENTICE SEVERAL STALLIONS TO GANGFUCK YOUR ASSPUSSY IN THE STABLES.

LADY RHEA WAS TRULY KIND TO LET ME BORROW THIS SHADY DUNGEON FOR THE WHOLE WEEK OF MY PRIVATE TWERKING LESSONS.

I HOPE YOU ARE ALL READY TO LOSE YOUR MORALS, AND YOUR ♥ MINDS. ♥

O-OOOHH—I KNOW YOU'VE BEEN PENT UP FOR A WHILE, BLACK CAT—BUT I DIDN'T THINK YOU'D BE SO DESPERATE FOR LIL OL' ME!

WHAT—DON'T HAVE MUCH OPTIONS TO DUMP ALL THAT KITTY MILK IN BESIDES SPIDER-GIRL? DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE SO LONELY, BABE!

YOU KNOW THAT YOU COULD ORDER SOME TOYS ONLINE TO GET THAT BIG THING SETTLED, RIGHT??

OR HECK, YOU COULD'VE STOLEN SOME IF YOU THOUGHT MORE WITH YOUR OTHER HEAD, TEEHEE!

SMACK!

SLAP!

ARROGANT FUCKING PAWG, TALKING WIT AS IF SHE HAS ANY AGENCY INSTEAD OF BEING MY FAT-ASSED DYKETOILET!!! SHE SHOULD BE SUBMITTING LIKE HER FUCKING MOM AND BE MY ANAL-ONLY SPIDER-FUCKTOY!

The people of Sparta need to see what happens when a Misthios crosses the line. You will be humiliated… broken.

You bastards! You're afraid… ha-hah!… of facing me fairly. So you humiliate me like this? This is your strength?

You think that you are above us? That you can mock kings and topple armies? Tonight, you'll laugh with us- whether you want to or not.

She was hailed as a hero by many, and even today, she stands on the endless battlefield with a determined gaze.

The Narrator:
As the seconds tick down with agonizing slowness and your fingers continue to savagely torment your victim's utterly exposed hollows, the Princess is overpowered by impulses and instincts she can no longer hold back or direct.

Were your Damsel not about to lay the world to waste, I would commend her for her incredible acting ability, for if I did not know any better I might think she actually can't clamp down her arms or let her deafening cackling out, as you so deviously requested she do.

The Hero:

She's really committed to the bit, isn't she?

The Smitten:

That's our loyal Princess for you! When we're at her side, our every fantasy and wish becomes reality!

Possibility Storm

Enchantment

Whenever a player casts a spell from his or her hand, that player exiles it, then exiles cards from the top of his or her library until he or she exiles a card that shares a card type with it. That player may cast that card without paying its mana cost. Then he or she puts all cards exiled with Possibility Storm on the bottom of his or her library in a random order.

Description

This new series will be packed with soaring, epic tales, introducing and tying together narrative threads from boxed sets, campaign books, and codexes. In short, Dawn of Fire combines the storytelling powerhouses of the Citadel studio and Black Library to create a broad, unified narrative that delivers the ongoing story of the 41st Millennium the most exciting, cohesive way ever [1]

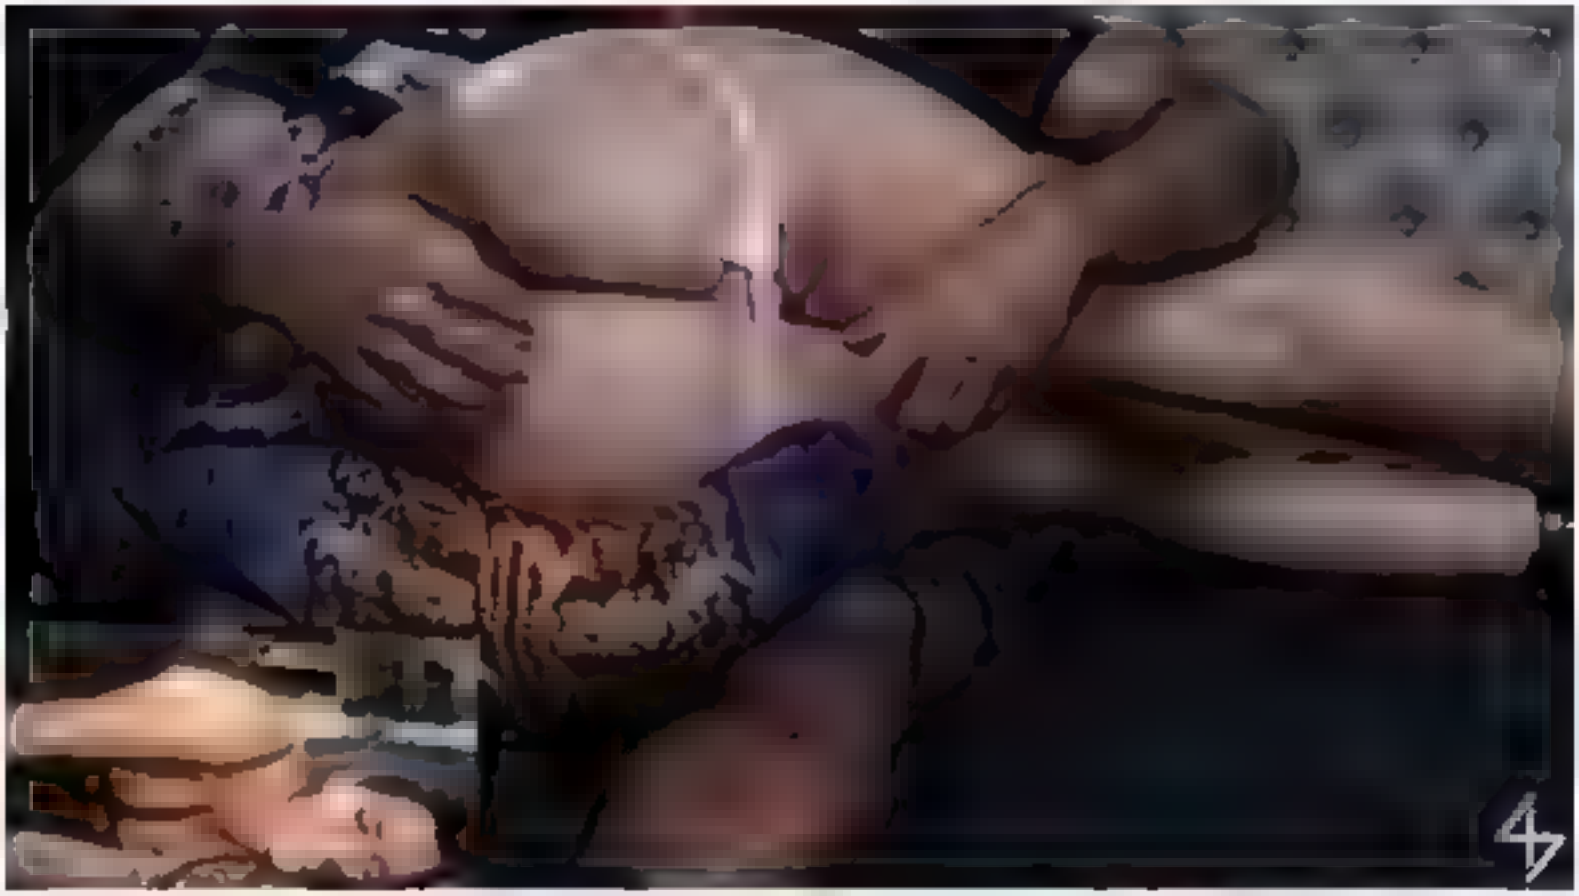
Door44 – Laughed Outta Her Skirt

No comments



@OmniphonProductions 2 weeks ago (edited)

Jason Ricci, demonstrably one of the best harmonica players in the world (with a mantle full of awards to prove it), has given seminar students the following advice. "Spend 15 minutes per day practicing what you know you suck at. Then spend 5 minutes reviewing something you know you're already good at. The first 15 minutes will grind you down emotionally. The last 5 will lift you back up. Little by little, those things you used to practice in the first 15 will become the things you review in the last 5." Focused and specific! I'd also add something I learned in Kenpo (and from police firearms instructors). "Slow is precise; precise is fast." Build each new skill frustratingly slow; then speed up incrementally.

Q&A special 150k followers!! Thank you!

With ai getting better and better is hard to recognize it, any advice on how to keep doing it

My advice is simple: don't worry about AI. Yes, it's getting more advanced and harder to spot, but it will always lack the one thing that gives true art its charm: the soul. And I don't mean this in a poetic way, I genuinely feel it. Every time I see an AI piece, even if it's technically impressive, I can tell right away it's missing that spark.

AI goes from point A, the prompt, to point Z, the result, but nothing happens in between. No doubts, no reflection, no lived experience, no emotion. And that's what makes an artwork memorable, the human touch, the weight of someone's life speaking to others.

And here's the truth: it's by stopping to create and letting fear of AI take over that we let it win. I spend a lot of time on social media looking at other artists' works because it makes me feel good and inspires me. Every single day, I discover dozens of new artists I didn't know the day before, whose styles amaze me. People love them, follow them, like their art, buy their prints. That shows me something very clear: people still care about preserving real art created by human hands. They want that spark, that mysterious something, that lets one human truly speak to another.

The Great Void.

Meet the Boötes Void, one of the most mysterious empty regions in the Universe. It's astonishingly large: over 330 million light years across, yet there are only a few galaxies where there should be thousands.

Some say it's simply "The Great Nothing." Others Show more

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

Astronomers using the James Webb Space Telescope may have discovered AMORE6, potentially the universe's first pristine galaxy, composed almost entirely of hydrogen and helium with virtually no heavier elements.

Detected via gravitational lensing at redshift z = 5.725, meaning its light began its journey when the universe was roughly one billion years old, AMORE6 shows the characteristic hydrogen Hβ emission but notably lacks detected oxygen (O III).

This absence strongly suggests an extremely low metallicity, estimated at less than 0.12 percent of our Sun's abundance, placing it among the most chemically primitive galaxies known.

Its compact size, low stellar mass, and minimal oxygen content make it an excellent candidate for housing first-generation, metal-free star formation.

While surprising to find such a pristine environment so late in cosmic history, its discovery supports key predictions of the Big Bang model and opens a new window into the universe's earliest stellar populations.

Oh a human level I fundamentally believe no one should be killed by anhone no matter what, but on a human level I also fundamentally believe that this man stood by the consequences of the exact thing he supported which was freedom to own guns and he died because of one. sorry to his family, but sadly when we support the right to have guns without restriction and regulation this is what happens literally every single day, people are just upset. Because it's a person in the public eye but when children get shot at schools everyday it's somehow justified?

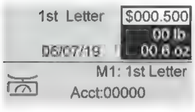
User Guide iX-3 Series:

How to Process International Mail

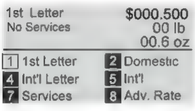
The mailing system allows you to process items for international mailing by selecting the appropriate country when processing.
For this example we will be processing an International First Class Letter to Great Britain.

One common mistake is to look for England or United Kingdom instead of Great Britain when selecting the country.

1. Place the item on the weighing platform and press .



2. Select Int'l Letter [4].



3. Select the destination country by entering the country number or by selecting the country from the list. To find the country, start keying in the name in the "Country" box.

4. Press the [OK] button twice to save and exit to the home screen. The cost of International 1st Class Letter is now displayed on the screen.

Webb detects jets of gas from protostar

The Webb Space Telescope has observed a forming star 15,000 light years away. It is sending out two narrow streams of hot gas, each 8 light years long. That's twice the distance from the Sun to Alpha Centauri.

Unlike what we're used to seeing with small stars, the jets are being ejected by a massive protostar, about 10 times the mass of the Sun. Infrared data shows the jets punching through interstellar gas and dust, creating shock waves and shaping the structure of the future star.

"Spanish Dancer" in Space.

The spiral galaxy NGC 1566, nicknamed the "Spanish Dancer", is located in the constellation Dorado at a distance of about 40 million light years. Its size is comparable to the Milky Way - about 100 thousand light years in diameter.

The main feature of the galaxy is a bright active nucleus with a suspected supermassive black hole, which actively absorbs matter and emits powerful energy. Thanks to this, NGC 1566 is one of the brightest and most noticeable in its region.

pubity Lucasfilm has unveiled a massive new interactive Star Wars galaxy map, giving fans the clearest look yet at the geography of a galaxy far, far away. Spanning more than 100,000 light-years, the map charts over 500 planets, from famous worlds like Tatooine and Coruscant to deep-cut locations across films, TV series, games, and novels.

The map isn't static, it will continue to update as new stories expand the universe.
The release comes with a 59-page reference guide detailing the history, appearances, and connections of each system, plus the galaxy's five major hyperspace trade routes.

It even includes clever nods to the prequels and reveals surprising placements, like Batuu's location near Endor on the Outer Rim.
From iconic settings to hidden corners of the expanded universe, this long-awaited map finally unites decades of storytelling in one stunning, officially curated galactic blueprint, making it the ultimate resource for Star Wars fans everywhere.

thewondersofthecosmos ❄️ The Boomerang Nebula – The Coldest Known Place in the Universe

The Boomerang Nebula, located about 5,000 light-years away from Earth in the constellation Centaurus, holds the record for being the coldest known natural object in the universe. What makes it so extraordinary is that its temperature is measured to be around −272°C (−457.6°F)—just 1 degree above absolute zero (0 Kelvin), the lowest possible temperature where all atomic motion ceases.

Created in partnership with Louis XIII Cognac, which itself takes a century to mature, the film is sealed inside a high-tech vault programmed to unlock exactly 100 years after production wrapped.

A mission meant to last 3 years in orbit around Saturn, and instead the spacecraft spent 13 years, 76 days there, closing with a Grand Finale.

Another incredible time with @AriaNicolexxx! I had a unique way of rewarding her for her bravery in making it to my hometown, New York City! Plus I owed her for @FetishCon. So it was extra intense! Great content coming soon.. 😈 😉 lagra_art The painting shows Christ seated on a boulder in the wilderness, at a time of day which may be dawn. He is depicted wearing a dark blue overgarment and a red tunic, his head bowed, his hands clasped in his lap. His expression is one of anguish and deep thought. The desert landscape is barren, and the cool dawn light conveys a feeling of chill. The figure of Christ is slightly to the right of centre, the horizon is high, and the landscape fills the canvas

Vivacious and confident, she came alive before her audience, flaunting her body's delights without a hint of modesty. She arched back, golden cuffs and bejeweled charms reflecting echoes of sunlight as she moved.

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

Abell 78 is an unusual planetary nebula 5,000 light-years away in Cygnus, resembling a “born-again” star.

After ceasing core fusion en route to white dwarf status, a surface thermonuclear runaway ejected new gas layers that collided with the older nebula, forming strange filaments and irregular shells.

The image, from Hubble’s Wide Field Camera 3 and PAN-STARRS, reveals tangled structures and glowing shells around the central star from this collision.

This rare event showcases a brief revival in stellar death for stars 0.8–8 solar masses, highlighting its dynamic messiness.

animenewscentre Demon Slayer: Infinity Castle made U.S. box office history with a $33M opening day, including $11.4M previews.

It eclipsed the previous record held by 'Pokémon: The Movie' ($31M) for the highest opening weekend for an anime film, achieving this in a single day.

Scientists traced the invisible scaffolding of dark matter using over 100,000 Lyman-alpha galaxies in three eras after the Big Bang. These “cosmic fingerprints” reveal how galaxies like ours grew.

The James Webb Space Telescope (JWST), the largest ever launched, explores the universe in detail. Its NIRCam captured the first image of planetary nebula NGC 6072 in near-infrared (0.6–5 microns), while MIRI provided a mid-infrared view, revealing cosmic layers. Combined with other telescopes' observations across wavelengths (visible, radio, X-rays), this creates a comprehensive cosmic picture.

TON 618: The Ultimate Cosmic Abyss That Swallows Stars Whole!

Buckle up, space explorers—meet TON 618, the undisputed king of black holes, the most massive monster humanity has ever spotted in the void!

Packing a jaw-dropping mass equivalent to 66 BILLION Suns (that's right, billion with a B!), this gravitational Goliath could crush our entire Solar System into oblivion without breaking a sweat.

See that tiny blue speck ? That's not just a dot—it's the full orbit of Earth looping around our Sun , vanishing like a whisper into TON 618's insatiable maw. Imagine: a darkness so vast, it redefines "infinite"!

Hiding out over 10 billion light-years from us, this ancient beast is a mind-bending testament to the universe's raw power, endless enigmas, and sheer awe-inspiring scale. Who knows what secrets it holds as it lurks in the cosmic shadows?

darkgloomyart Mermaids, circa 1879. Painted by Konstantin Yegorovich Makovsky.

This dramatic nocturnal scene depicts Slavic water nymphs, or rusalki, gathering under the moonlight by a forest stream. Bathed in an eerie glow, the ethereal figures emerge from the water and drift into the night, their dance filled with mystery, sensuality, and folkloric enchantment.

lagra_art Procne or Progne is a minor figure in Greek mythology. She was an Athenian princess as the elder daughter of a king of Athens named Pandion. Procne was married to the king of Thrace, Tereus, who instead lusted after her sister Philomela. Tereus forced himself on Philomela and locked her away. When Procne discovered her sister and her gruesome fate, she took revenge against her husband by murdering their only child, a young boy named Itys. Procne's story serves as an origin myth for the nightingale Philomela and Procne (1861). By William Bouguereau, (French, 1825-1905). Oil on canvas, 133.85 x 175.76cm.

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

Distant, early galaxies appear as "little red dots" in the James Webb Space Telescope's observations, redshifted due to the expansion of the universe. These are not "black hole stars," but rather some of the first galaxies to form.

darkgloomyart The Ballad of Lenore, circa 1796. Engraving by Edward Harding.

This is dramatic engraving by Edward Harding, after a painting by Lady Diana Beauclerk (1734–1808), illustrating William Robert Spencer's 1796 English translation of "The Ballad of Lenore". The scene captures the Gothic intensity of Gottfried August Bürger's famous tale, with Death personified as a skeletal rider carrying Lenore away on a spectral horse. Cloaked figures and graveyard imagery heighten the macabre atmosphere, embodying the Romantic fascination with mortality, the supernatural, and the sublime.

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

Observations of Fomalhaut, a bright star 25 light-years away, suggest a hidden exoplanet is warping its debris disk. ALMA telescope data show the disk's oval shape varies, with inner regions more stretched and outer parts more circular, a pattern called a negative eccentricity gradient. This structure points to a massive planet, likely orbiting between 70-115 AU, shaping the disk through gravity. James Webb Space Telescope data, revealing an intermediate dust belt, further supports this planet hypothesis.

wj4jm I love when art makes the sweetest memories 💕

This fanart was made for my sister, she asked for a drawing of her and her friends having their cozy weekend hangout, Pusheen-style! 🐾🍰

It ended up turning into a sweet family memory when my 4 years old nephew saw me do the outline and wanted to color it himself! He was SO proud of his work, he couldn't stop admiring it for days! 🐱💫 Swipe ➡️ to see his colorful masterpiece! 🥹 Honestly, I think he might be the next tiny artist in the family! 🤭 🖌️💕

Black Hole
@konstructivizm

Nestled 420 light-years away in the constellation Centaurus, J1407b isn't just another distant world—it's a cosmic behemoth dubbed the "Super Saturn," where a mind-boggling ring system steals the show, dwarfing the planet itself in sheer spectacle. This colossal setup boasts over 30 rings stretching a staggering 120 million miles (200 million kilometers) across—200 times vaster than Saturn's iconic bands, so immense that if swapped in, they'd engulf our solar system out to Saturn's orbit. Discovered through a dramatic 56-day eclipse of its young sun-like star V1400 Centauri back in 2007, these rings reveal intricate gaps and substructures, hinting at dozens of budding exomoons coalescing from the dusty debris, like watching planetary birth in fast-forward. And here's the latest twist: recent studies suggest these gargantuan rings might even whirl backward around the planet, defying expectations and adding to the enigma of this rogue giant—possibly a brown dwarf or free-floating wanderer rather than a traditional exoplanet. J1407b isn't merely a planet; it's a front-row seat to the universe's wildest architectural wonders, challenging our grasp on how worlds and their accessories form.

scooby Need to see this guy and Larry the lobster arm wrestle

In SpongeBob SquarePants, Larry the Lobster stands out as Bikini Bottom's most famous bodybuilder, a lifeguard and fitness icon often seen flexing on Goo Lagoon's sandy shores. Introduced in the early seasons, Larry embodies the classic "muscle beach" archetype—confident, popular, and always promoting a fit lifestyle. His character became a satirical nod to gym culture, where strength and appearance often carry as much weight as responsibility, and he remains one of the show's more prominent recurring figures.

By contrast, the unnamed "Muscle Fish" is a background character who has achieved cult status among fans. With his square head, bulging arms, and only have a few stages of The Beguiled recorded but as all we need to distinguish the power and depth achievable using glazed layers. Comparing this stage to the multi-glazed stage opposite we see a flash transformation with relatively little effort. Although the stage above looks chalk-like next to the glazed finished version, most of the heavy lifting is done in this lesser coloured stage.

But observe the power of glazing. It is not simply a blue or red colour we place on top to get this sophisticated of colour that would be too primary and garish. These transparent colours are glazed in layers, creating colours unavailable in tube form. What we end up with is an illumination only truly visible in real life. For what we are looking at on the printed page are millions of tiny, ink dots placed next to each other to approximate the original colour. A high powered magnifying glass will expose this mechanical illusion.

So what difference would viewing this painting make in real life? Any art student will tell us three primary colours: red, yellow, blue; when mixed creates secondary colours: red and yellow: orange, yellow and blue: green, and red and blue: purple. Then mixing the purple, red and green colours creates muddy, ordinary colours, useful for taming colours that are too bright. Add in subtle whites and we get warm or cool greys. Technically we need only these colours plus white to mix all the colours of the rainbow. But is digital true. Anyone who has witnessed a rainbow knows those colours have a magical quality, and that quality is light. Light scattered through a prism of rain droplets creates colour depth impossible to produce with a single layer of ink on a page. But with layered glazes we have multilayered colours that glow and vibrate just as light reflects through a rainbow. Lets explore this idea further.

Wow, what an amazing touch to this song that really help me to begin healing and confront my true emotions. 💗

This feels like a mature conclusion while the first was grittier and raw, if that makes sense.

@FabvLMusic phenomenal work🙏
Lee really delivered as well.

The only death that's beautiful! 💫

Cassiopeia A (often shortened to Cas A) is one of the most fascinating supernova remnants in the Milky Way. About 11,000 light-years away in the constellation Cassiopeia, it spans nearly 10 light-years across today—still expanding outward from the massive star that exploded roughly 340 years ago, though the light from the explosion only reached Earth several centuries ago.

NASA's James Webb Space Telescope has recently imaged Cas A using both its NIRCam (Near-Infrared Camera) and MIRI (Mid-Infrared Instrument) instruments, revealing unprecedented detail.

In Webb's MIRI views, the supernova remnant glows with vivid mid-infrared emission, showing the warm dust and molecules being heated by shock waves and by the interaction of the blast's still-moving material with surrounding gas.

Meanwhile, the NIRCam image shows sharp, intricate filaments and knots —clumps of gas rich in elements like sulfur, oxygen, argon, and neon—along with delicate bubble-like structures and curtains of tenuous material.

Image: NASA, ESA

NASA captured this breathtaking image of a star's death, located 11,000 light-years away!

APPASAURAN (Vestigium Rubrum Trium Digitorum)

Try update again

kable giant herbivore, known for its unique respiratory and his creature can grow up to 25 meters tall, making it one of the tallest beings in its ecosystem. Its thick, scaly skin is usually a rich emerald green, marked with vertical stripes or streaks of red, yellow, and teal running along its neck and back.

These color patterns are believed to serve both as countershading camouflage among the forest canopy and as a display to attract mates.Its most striking physical feature is its extraordinary muscular strength. The Appasauran has thick, powerful, and sturdy limbs, enabling it to travel long distances and, when threatened, deliver kicks capable of incapacitating even the largest predators.

The Mesmerizing Pleiades

This famous star cluster in the constellation Taurus, located approximately 444 light-years from Earth, contains over 1,000 stars, of which approximately seven of the brightest are visible to the naked eye.

Their age is estimated at approximately 100 million years, making the Pleiades a relatively young cluster. The bluish hue of the stars indicates their high temperature, and the surrounding nebulae are visible due to the reflection of light from interstellar dust.

NASA Webb Explores Effect of Strong Magnetic Fields on Star Formation
NASA's James Webb Space Telescope (Webb) is exploring the influence of strong magnetic fields on star formation in the Sagittarius C region, located approximately 200 light-years from the central supermassive black hole of the Milky Way, Sagittarius A*. This research is based on the analysis of an image of the Sagittarius C stellar nursery obtained by Webb in 2023, which revealed outflows from protostars and provided new insights into the role of magnetic fields in the stellar life cycle. Despite the presence of dense gas and cosmic dust in the Central Molecular Zone, the star formation rate there is lower than expected, which scientists believe is related to the suppression of this process by strong magnetic fields. Astrophysicist John Bally from the University of Colorado at Boulder noted that magnetic fields can hinder the gravitational collapse of gas even on small scales, which is being observed directly for the first time thanks to Webb. Webb's infrared instruments allow penetration through dusty regions, providing detailed study of young stars in the extreme conditions of the galactic center. Researchers confirmed the presence of two massive protostars, each more than 20 times the mass of the Sun, in the brightest cluster of Sagittarius C, using data from Webb, Spitzer, SOFIA, and Herschel. Additionally, by comparing data from Webb and ALMA, five candidates for low-mass protostars were identified. The team discovered 88 signs of shocked hydrogen gas, where jets from young stars interact with surrounding clouds, indicating active formation processes. Webb also revealed a new star-forming cloud containing at least two protostars with their own jets, expanding the understanding of local conditions. Magnetic fields, amplified by gas motion under the influence of tidal forces from Sagittarius A*, form long bright plasma filaments, confining it and preventing spread, which explains the low efficiency of star formation in the region.

TIME DISPLACEMENT

The time differences between real space and warpspace are quite drastic. Not only does time pass at different rates in both kinds of space, but it also passes at very variable rates. Until a ship finishes its jump, it is impossible for a ship's crew to know exactly how long their journey has taken. Time passing in real space is referred to as real time. Time passing on board a spacecraft is referred to as warp time. The relationship between real time and warp time is shown on the chart below.

Light Years	Minimum Warp Time	Maximum Warp Time	Minimum Real Time	Maximum Real Time
1	2 mins	6 mins	43 mins	4½ hrs
5	7 mins	30 mins	3½ hrs	1 day
10	14 mins	1 hour	7 hrs	2 days
50	1¼ hrs	4½ hrs	1½ days	9 days
100	2½ hrs	9½ hrs	3 days	3 weeks
500	12 hrs	2 days	2 weeks	3 months
1,000	1 day	4 days	1 month	6 months
5,000	5 days	3 weeks	5 months	3 years

So, for example, a 100 light year jump will seem to take from 2½ to 9½ hours to a spaceship's crew, but between 3 days and 3 weeks will have passed in real space. These times do not include journey times out to and from jump points on the edge of the star systems. It takes from days to weeks of travel at sub-light speeds to reach a drop from the spaceship's starting planet, and a similar time to re-enter the destination system.

The Imperium is approximately 75 thousand light years from edge to edge. A journey of this length would take between 75 and 300 days in warp time, and between 6 years and 40 years real time.
